The first way is to encode the data directly into memory. The body part data is encoded using the following format: Content-Disposition: shape data; name=# {name}; filename=# {filename} (HTTP header) Content Type: # {mimeType} (HTTP header) Encoded stream data Multipart module limit Public function appendage Swift (stream: InputStream, with length: UInt64, name: String, filename: String, mimeType: String) InputStream stream for encoding in the instance. Appendix public function Swift (fileURL: URL, withName: String) URL fileURL of the file whose contents will be encoded in the instance. = nil) data to be encoded in the instance. This is very efficient, but can cause memory problems if the data set is too large. Default memory threshold used when encoding MultipartFormData, in bytes. The second approach MUST be used for larger datasets like video content, otherwise the app's memory may run out when you try to encode the dataset. The body part data is encoded using the following format: Content-Disposition: shape data; name=# {name}; filename=# {filename} (HTTP header) Content Type: # {mimeType} (HTTP header) Encoded file data Multipart module limit Public function appendage Swift (date: Data, conName: String, filename: String? name Name to associate with the stream content in the HTTP Content-Disposition header. append (.withLength:name:filename:mimeType): Create a part body from the stream and adds it to the instance. append (.withName:filename:mimeType): Creates a body part from the file and adds it Body part data is encoded using the following format: Content-Disposition: form data; name=# {name}; filename=# {generated filename} (HTTP (HTTP) .TATAD-MROF / TRAPITLUM .6TAD-MRO / ETARENEG ETARENEG ETARNEG EHT DESESS GNINIATNO EULAD EULAV EULAH EPTNOH EPTNOH EHT 46TNIU: DLOHERHERHYHRMMNOCNE Tel CILBUP TC CILBIP GRADIP .NOOTATENEMGES Yadnuob Reporp Elif Elif Elgnis and OT Elif Elgnis.
